About the Authors xvii

1. Qualitative Research: Defining and Designing 1
- What Is Qualitative Research? 2
  - Qualitative Data Types 3
- Epistemological Perspectives 5
  - Interpretivism 5
  - Positivism, Post-Positivism and Model-Dependent Realism 6
- Basic Approaches in Qualitative Research 8
  - Phenomenology 10
  - Ethnography 11
  - Inductive Thematic Analysis and Grounded Theory 13
  - Case Study Approaches 14
  - Discourse and Conversation Analysis 14
  - Narrative Analysis 16
  - Mixed Methods Approaches 16
- Finding Your Focus: Research Design Considerations 17
  - Establishing Research Objectives 18
  - When to Use Qualitative Methods 21
  - When Not to Use Qualitative Methods 25
  - What Aspect(s) of Human Experience Do I Wish to Examine? 26
  - What Is My Unit of Analysis? 26
  - What Is the Scope of My Research Topic? 28
  - How Much Structure Do I Need? 30
- Summing Up 33
  - About This Book 35
- References 36
- Additional Reading 38

2. Sampling in Qualitative Research 41
- What Is Sampling? 41
- Selecting Whom to Sample 42
  - Inductive Sampling 45
- Sampling Approaches 46
  - Census 46
  - Non-Probability Sampling 47
  - Purposive Sampling 48
  - Probabilistic Sampling 53
  - Simple Random Sample (SRS) 54
  - Systematic Sample 55
  - How Do I Choose a Sampling Strategy? 56
- Choosing Sample Sizes 58
  - In-Depth Interviews 58
  - Focus Groups 63
  - Participant Observation 64
  - Sampling in Mixed Methods Research 66
  - Timing 66
  - Relationship Between Samples 66

Recruiting 67

Additional Reading 73
Exercises 74

3. Participant Observation 75
What Is Participant Observation? 75
Direct Observation Versus Participant Observation 78
Why Use Participant Observation? 80
The Role of Participant Observation in the Research Process 82
How to Conduct Participant Observation 84
Choosing the Research Venue(s) 85
Preparing to Enter the Field 87
Entering the Observation Venue 89
What to Observe 91
Organizing Data 98
How Long to Stay 99
Exiting the Venue 100
Ethical and Practical Considerations 101
Informed Consent and Ethics in Participant Observation 101
Researcher Safety 104
Legal Issues and Constraints 106
Participant Observation in International Settings 108
Dealing With Social Limits 108
Dealing With Linguistic and Cultural Translation Issues 109
Summing Up 109
References 110
Additional Reading 110
Exercises 111

4. In-Depth Interviews 113
What Is an In-Depth Interview? 113
An Interview Typology 114
Why Use In-Depth Interviews? 116
Exploring 117
Explaining 118
Common Types of In-Depth Interviews 118
Phenomenological Interviews 119
Oral History 119
Case Study 120
As Part of a Larger Study 120
Recruiting Participants 121
Preparing for an Interview 123
Planning 123
Training 127
Developing an Effective Instrument 129
Process 129
Types of Instruments 132
How Much Structure Do I Need for My IDI Guide? 135
Types of Interview Questions 136
Phrasing Questions 141
Sequencing Questions 142
Developing Transition Explanations 143
Conducting an In-Depth Interview 144
Where/When to Conduct In-Depth Interviews 144
Establishing Rapport 145
General Interview Flow 147
Probing 148
Most Common In-Depth Interview Mistakes (and solutions) 152
Dealing With Emergent Issues 154
Documenting the Interview 156
Use of Audio-Recording 157
Note Taking 157
Interviewing in Teams 159
Post-Interview Debrief 159
In-Depth Interview Variations 160

In-Depth Interview Outputs 162
Working Internationally 162
Translation 164
Interpretation 165
Matching Interviewers and Interviewees 166
Building Rapport 167
Summing Up 167
References 168
Additional Reading 170
Exercises 170

5. Focus Groups 172
What Is a Focus Group? 172
Why Use Focus Groups? 173
Practical Dimensions of Conducting Focus Groups 176
Focus Group Size 176
Incentives 178
Recruiting Participants 179
Preparing for a Focus Group 182
Timing 182
Facilities 183
Training 188
Developing an Effective Instrument 191
Conducting a Focus Group 194
Gauging the Group 194
Setting the Tone and Expectations 195
Probing in Focus Groups 195
Maximizing the Focus Group Dynamic 196
Managing Different Personalities 196
Closing out the Focus Group 198
Most Common Focus Group Mistakes (and solutions) 198
Documenting the Focus Group 199
Post-Event Debrief 200
Focus Group Variations 202
Telephone Focus Groups 202
Internet Focus Groups 203
Focus Group Outputs 204
Working Internationally 205
Preparing for a Cross-Cultural or International Focus Group 205
Working With Groups in Cross-Cultural and International Settings 207
Interpretation and Translation in International and Cross-Cultural Groups 208
Summing Up 209
References 209
Additional Reading 210
Exercises 210
Appendix 5.1 211

6. Additional Qualitative Data Collection Methods 223
Projective Techniques 224
Analysis Modes 225
Activities Appropriate for Both In-Depth Interviews and Focus Groups 226
Listing 226
Categorizing 228
Creating Timelines 232
Drawing and Mapping 234
Building a Collage 237
Visual Elicitation Techniques 238
Photos 239
Objects 240
Rating and Ranking 241
Post-Event Reflection 245
Activities Best Suited for Focus Groups 245
Delphi Method 246
Creating a Campaign 247

Activities Best Suited for Individual Interviews 248
Laddering 248
Ethnographic Decision Modeling 250
Document Analysis 252
Steps in Document Analysis 252
Analytic Approach to Documents 254
Hypothesis-Driven (Confirmatory) Document Analyses 254
Content-Driven (Exploratory) Document Analyses 256
Working Internationally 258
Summing Up 259
References 266
Additional Reading 269
Exercises 269
Appendix 6.1 270
Appendix 6.2 273

7. Qualitative Data Management 275
What Is Data Management? 275
Why Is Data Management Important? 276
Identifying Sources and Labeling Data 278
Data Conversion 284
Transcribing 284
Translating 288
Keeping a Record of Events 292
Monitoring Data Quality and Study Progress 293
Organizing and Storing Data 295
Archiving 297
Creating an "Audit Trail" 298
Working Internationally 299
Summing Up 301
References 302
Additional Reading 303
Exercises 303
Appendix 7.1 306
Appendix 7.2 311
Appendix 7.3 313
Appendix 7.4 314
Appendix 7.5 315

8. Ethical Dimensions of Qualitative Research 317
Basic Ethical Principles in Research 317
What Is Different (or not) About the Ethics of Qualitative or Sociobehavioral Research? 318
What Is an "Ethical" Qualitative Research Design? 320
Do You Need to Have Your Qualitative Study Reviewed by an IRB? 320
Are There Other Forms of Review or Consultation You Will Need? 324
Ethical Considerations for Participant Observation, In-Depth Interviews, and Focus Groups 325
Informed Consent 325
Confidentiality 333
Incentives 339
Monitoring Your Research 341
Reporting Problems 342
Working Internationally 343
Summing Up 346
References 346
Additional Reading 348
Exercises 348
